OUR COMMUNITY

THE HISTORY OF FORT SILL

Welcome to one of the oldest and best known Military installations in the United States! Fort Sill is home of Army Fires Center of Excellence, the historic home of the Field Artillery, and the home of the Air Defense Artillery (ADA) School. Its colorful history has turned the installation into a National Historic Landmark. Although Lawton-Fort Sill is not the oldest of the Wild West cities, it is a historic, proud, and lively community. The installation covers about 94,000 acres just north of Lawton, Oklahoma at the post of the Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge.

The site was staked out in January of 1869 by Major General Philip H. Sheridan (see image below) who led a campaign to stop Native American tribes from raiding border settlements in Texas and Kansas. General Sheridan later named the installation after his West Point classmate, Brigadier General Joshua W. Sill, who was killed in the Civil War. By July of 1901, 29,000 homesteaders had registered for the land lottery at Fort Sill. By August of that same year, Lawton had become a large and rapidly growing city.

LAWTON, OKLAHOMA

The steady growth of modern day Lawton can be attributed to the growth of Fort Sill. The attractiveness of the climate, the countryside, and employment opportunities for people with a variety of skills have made Lawton-Fort Sill a popular retirement area for military personnel.

According to the 2022 census, Lawton's estimated population was 91,542, making it the sixth-largest city, by population, in the state, and the largest in Western Oklahoma. Although Lawton's economy is still largely dependent on Fort Sill, it has grown to encompass higher education, manufacturing, health care, and retail.

Part of the appeal is the romance of the area's pioneer history and the beauty of the rolling plains and rugged mountains. The activities at Fort Sill and local business, however, are part of the world's leading edge in technology and productivity. It is an inviting place not only to retire, but, to begin a business, start a career, or even raise a family.

LAWTON-FORT SILL CLIMATE

Lawton-Fort Sill lies in a dry subtropical climate with frequent variations in weather daily, except during the hot and dry summer. The winters are typically mild, though periods of extreme cold can occur. The area is located squarely in what is known as Tornado Alley and is prone to severe weather from late April through early June.

A HOME AWAY FROM HOME

Fort Sill has more to offer than meets the eye. The area is bustling with things to do and there's more to offer just a short drive away. There are tons of opportunities to enjoy the great outdoors with fishing, hiking, boating, and hunting at nearby parks and nature reserves. Fantastic restaurants, live music, and special events are a little over an hour away in Oklahoma City. Not to mention the recreation and entertainment options available on post thanks to Fort Sill Family & MWR.

While stationed at Fort Sill you'll have the opportunity to train at one of the premier Army installations. The location provides the chance to experience everything the Midwest has to offer. Moving to a new place has its challenges but you'll be glad to be here.

CHILDREN WITH SPECIAL MEDICAL NEEDS

We love our kids with special needs – and make every effort to include them in CYS activities and programs.

To do that, every installation convenes a Multi-disciplinary Inclusion Action Team (MIAT), which explores child care and youth supervision options for children and youth with special needs, including life-threatening conditions, functional limitations and diagnosed behavioral/psychological conditions.

The MIAT recommends child care and youth placement. It also determines reasonable accommodations and availability of services to support a child/youth's special needs.
